RAWHIDE LEASE IN TELLURIUM ORE

FREE GOLD IS ALSO FOUND IN THE ROCK AND VEIN HAS SEVEN-FOOT WIDTH.

RAWHIDE, Sept. 16.—Tellurium ore in considerable quantities was encountered today in cutting the shaft at the 200-foot level in the station on the Mint lease on the estate of the Rawhide Coalition Mines company. Besides the tellurium, the ore shows a large amount of free gold. Drifting both ways from the shaft continues in the workings on this lease, and the vein in both drifts now has a width of about seven feet, and is producing ten tons daily of ore, about one-half of which goes into the sacks for shipment.

On the Grutt Hill Coalition lease, also on the Rawhide Coalition estate, the drifts at the 107-foot level now show four feet of high-grade shipping ore, and the general condition of the mine is improving daily. The rich streak at this level maintains its values, and a large amount of this specimen rock is being extracted every day. Ten tons are being hoisted every shift from the 107-level in this lease, and fully one-third of this amount is high-grade shipping ore. A thirty-five ton shipment is now ready to be sent forward to the sampler by the managers of this lease, and the development work has proceeded to a point where the management is confident that shipments of high grade ore can be continued for some time to come.

From the Grutt Mining company lease on Coalition ground, where a sensational strike of high-grade ore was made last week, a thirty-ton shipment was started this morning toward the sampler, and the management reports that the face of the drift on the forty-foot level still shows eighteen inches of extremely high-grade ore, and two feet that will average around $50 to the ton.

The shaft on the Proskey lease has reached a depth of eighty feet, and the bottom is all in ore that pans well. This shaft is expected to cut the sensational Coalition Mint lease vein at any time now.

The Truett lease on the Happy Hooligan claim of the Coalition estate, continues its regular production by hoisting twenty tons a day from the drifts and stopes on the seventy-foot level. This amount is screened down to five tons that will assay $80 to the ton, and shipments are being forwarded regularly to both the sampler and the Watt-Bradford mill. A thirty-ton shipment is now being assembled at Fallon, and will go to the Captain Davis mill at Dayton this week.

The new strike on the Lillian lease on the estate of the Rawhide Consolidated Mines company is showing constant improvement, and with the installation of the hoist on this property, another regular shipper will be added to the already long list of shipping properties in the camp.

There were over fifty arrivals by automobile in Rawhide this morning, and the camp is filling up rapidly. With the in-rush of people, and the immense quantities of building material that are being freighted in from Fallon and Schurz, the camp is taking on again the appearance it had at the height of the first big rush in February and March. Over 200 carpenters are now employed in rebuilding the burned district. New business houses, offices, saloons, etc., are going up like magic, and with every freighting outfit that arrives in the camp going back to the railroad loaded with ore, the camp presents a scene of hustling activity that it has never known before, as the ore shipments were lacking when the first rush was on in the early part of the year.

BREAKING IT GENTLY.

"George," said she, "you have held a good many high positions at one time and another."

"Yes," said George, who had been married long enough to know that non-committance is the best home policy.

"And I have heard it said that your success was due to the magnetism that drew men toward you."

"Um—I—"

"Don't pretend to be bashful, now. And I was just wondering if you were magnetic enough to draw the tacks from that drawing-room carpet tomorrow morning before breakfast."

—Tit-Bits.

NO GRAMMARIAN.

Wearly Willie—Lady, kin youse give a poor feller a bite t' eat?

Mrs. Rurallum—Why, certainly. Did you see a pile of wood as you came in?

Wearly Willie—Yes'm, I seen it. Mrs. Rurallum—You mean that you saw it.

Wearly Willie (beating it while his shoes were good)—Scuse me, lady, but I ain't no grammarian.—New York Globe.

GOLF IN THE SUN.

"Hoot, mon!" shouted the big Scotchman, as he pounded the ball from the tee, "golf is a game of bliss."

And the lovely American girl who had been playing in the blazing sun for two hours replied feebly:

"That may be, but to me it feels like a game of blister."—Chicago News
